

TIGER RAG

NEWSLETTER OF THE TIGER MOTH CLUB OF
NEW ZEALAND INC

DECEMBER 2018

CHRISTMAS EDITION

When I took on the task of editor, it was suggested that the Tiger Rag come out four times a year. That sounded like a sensible suggestion especially since the two major events are more or less six months apart. One issue to provide good coverage of each event seemed entirely logical. But the members also wanted an issue prior to the AGM and Taumaranui for last minute updates. Again entirely reasonable. So you are going to see changes. Up coming events calendar and a Buy, sell or swap section has been added for the benefit of members.

Expect to see material of bygone days when there is little else of news, but if you want to know what's going on then, alas, somebody has to let the editor know. The easiest way to contribute is to send in any snippets of news from your neck of the wood. You will be surprised how many folk don't know what's going on at your place. All the better if you are privy to local knowledge.

Apart from news items there are also opinions, stories of flying adventures, and of course, photos. Just think of the photos you have taken recently. They may seem quite ordinary to you but could be of great interest to others. None of us can be everywhere at once even in this small country so your camera helps all of the members see what is going on. For example, many members know that there are two big beautiful classic Cessna 195s in the country and one made it to Taumaranui as shown below. But according to the United States Civil Aircraft Register there is a third one owned by a chap in Northland. Really? So how about it members, send something to the editor, it only takes a few clicks.

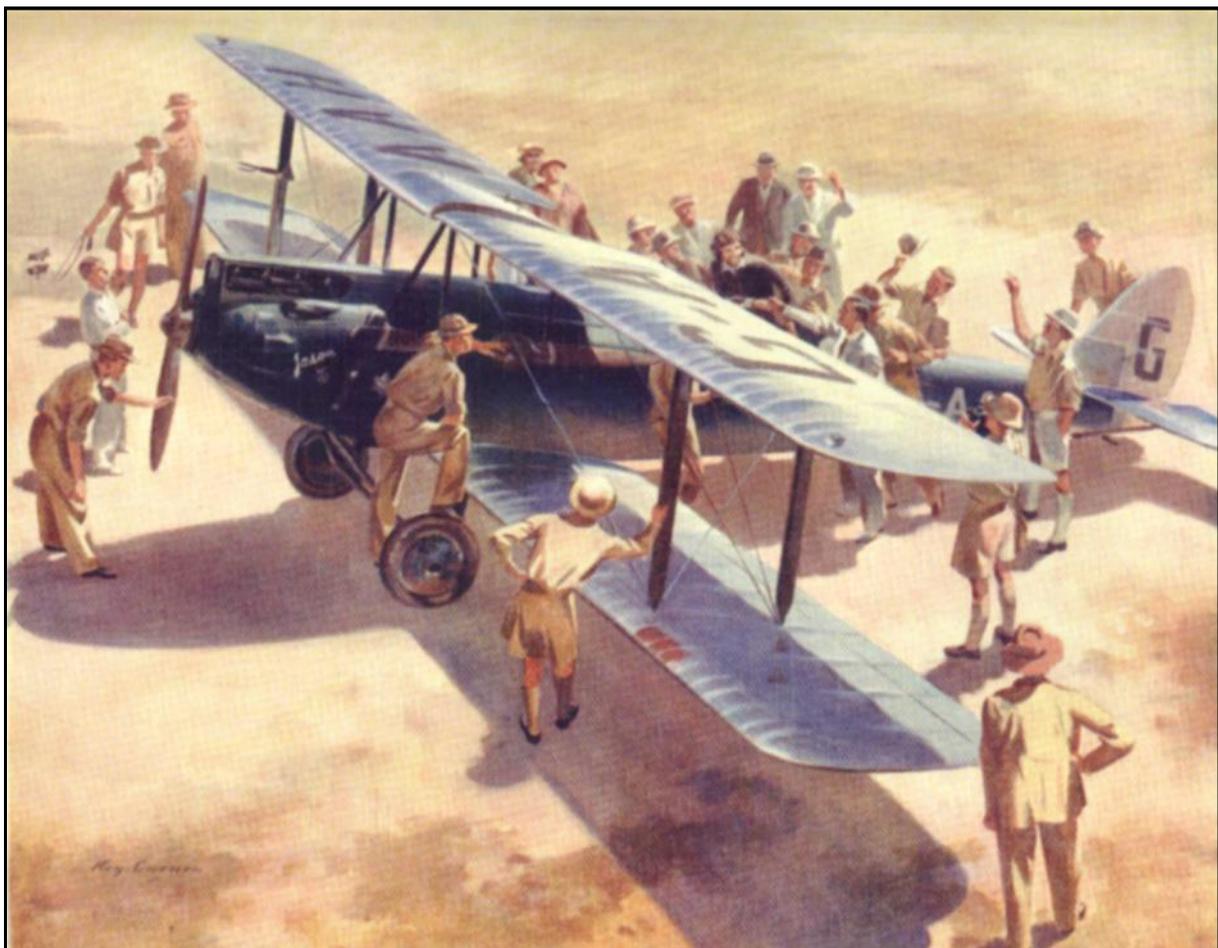

Not your usual Cessna. The six-seat 195 has a performance comparable to the much more familiar Cessna 185 Skywagon, not bad for a luxury all-metal aircraft built from 1947 to 1954

Even the greats in the aviation world need a helping hand. Here a QANTAS pilot explains to Amy Johnson where some of the landing places are inland from Darwin. The QANTAS man, having flown the route several times, was none other than C.W.A. Scott, who later won to Mildenhall to Melbourne Air race.

The de Havilland Aircraft Company was not just famous for its aircraft and engines. Their in house magazine, the beloved Gazette, not only provided news of de Havilland products but sponsored a number of cartoonists and writers whose task it was to show the lighter side of aviation, often at the expense of de Havilland itself. The following few pages contain material first published in the Gazette, that not only reflect bygone days, but also show us that not everything has to be taken seriously.

All de Havilland employees who started with the company in 1930 and were still employed twenty years later received a mounted print of this painting as enrollment to the esteemed Twenty Year Club. The image depicts Amy Johnson and the Moth she flew from England to Australia, the first woman to achieve such a feat.

New Zealand's shortest lived Tiger

One Tiger Moth I never expected to see a photo of was ZK-AFX purchased by the Government as a loan machine for the Western Federated Flying Club that operated in Taranaki and Wanganui. Built at Hatfield and test flown there on 6 December 1937, this Tiger Moth arrived at Auckland with six others all destined for various Aero Clubs. On 26 Feb 1938 an RNZAF pilot took off from Hobsonville and soon after the engine cut and the Tiger Moth ended up in the sea. Pilot and aircraft were dragged ashore and ZK-AFX never flew again.

What was left of ZK-AFX on the wharf at Hobsonville, after its one and only flight in New Zealand .

My thanks to Ron Ark of the NZ Aviation Historical Society for the use of these photos from the Robert Kerr collection. Question is: Did the Gipsy Major No. 80278 fitted to ZK-AFX ever fly in another Tiger?

smoothness you look for A good propeller is rather like a good arrangement. It is a blend of many single components, as a sword is a mixture of metals. And, like well-kept tools, your good propeller must above all be smooth, in "finish", to use the technical term. Thus there is no finer means of propelling
"power" than smoothness - you enjoy it.
de Havilland propellers are due to the skill of its manufacturers, who merge the best selected single parts in perfect harmony.
That is why there is no better propeller.

Another little nature story for birdmen:

A gentleman on shikar (safari) came across a poor wounded elephant caught in a trap. He released it, nursed it back to health and set it free in the jungle. Several years later he was home on leave and went to the circus not far from Hatfield. He was in the cheapest seats. There was an elephant act and one of the elephants, seeming to recognise him, walked purposefully across the arena, lifted him gently out of the one-and-threepennies with its trunk, and strangled him. It was a different elephant altogether.
